

For all the talk of California Cabernet becoming a beast fueled by blackberry jam and overt alcohol, we found several ageless examples of how the state still makes some of the world's finest Cabernets.

TOP 100 WINES

2004 Corison Winery Napa Cabernet Sauvignon ($70) While there are those who find Cathy Corison's wines too polemical - with angular edges and sharp fruit - we vehemently disagree. At under 14 percent alcohol, they may be old-school, but they're also intense and beautifully structured. This latest is quintessential Corison, with impressive aromas of sandalwood and plum, a tight-knit structure with bright fruit, fantastic balance and a warm, rich note to finish.

For all the talk of California Cabernet becoming a beast fueled by blackberry jam and overt alcohol, we found several ageless examples of how the state still makes some of the world's finest Cabernets.

TOP 100 WINES

2004 Corison Winery Napa Cabernet Sauvignon ($70) While there are those who find Cathy Corison's wines too polemical - with angular edges and sharp fruit - we vehemently disagree. At under 14 percent alcohol, they may be old-school, but they're also intense and beautifully structured. This latest is quintessential Corison, with impressive aromas of sandalwood and plum, a tight-knit structure with bright fruit, fantastic balance and a warm, rich note to finish.

For all the talk of California Cabernet becoming a beast fueled by blackberry jam and overt alcohol, we found several ageless examples of how the state still makes some of the world's finest Cabernets.

TOP 100 WINES

2004 Corison Winery Napa Cabernet Sauvignon ($70) While there are those who find Cathy Corison's wines too polemical - with angular edges and sharp fruit - we vehemently disagree. At under 14 percent alcohol, they may be old-school, but they're also intense and beautifully structured. This latest is quintessential Corison, with impressive aromas of sandalwood and plum, a tight-knit structure with bright fruit, fantastic balance and a warm, rich note to finish.

For all the talk of California Cabernet becoming a beast fueled by blackberry jam and overt alcohol, we found several ageless examples of how the state still makes some of the world's finest Cabernets.

TOP 100 WINES

2004 Corison Winery Napa Cabernet Sauvignon ($70) While there are those who find Cathy Corison's wines too polemical - with angular edges and sharp fruit - we vehemently disagree. At under 14 percent alcohol, they may be old-school, but they're also intense and beautifully structured. This latest is quintessential Corison, with impressive aromas of sandalwood and plum, a tight-knit structure with bright fruit, fantastic balance and a warm, rich note to finish.